Biography

Lee has over 16 years of legal experience and focuses his practice on representing a diverse range of individual and corporate clients in complex matters in both state and federal courts. With a niche in the restaurant, hospitality, and cannabis industries, Lee provides invaluable counsel to clients within these sectors.

A significant part of Lee's practice is devoted to assisting clients in day-to-day employment practices counseling, ensuring they stay compliant with ever-changing labor laws and regulations. Lee also conducts in-person training sessions on a variety of critical topics, such as sexual harassment prevention; diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI); and effective management techniques. Additionally, Lee regularly hosts webinars and writes alerts, helping his clients stay informed and proactive in their legal matters.

Lee has extensive experience handling all aspects of commercial civil litigation in both state and federal court, white-collar criminal defense cases, governmental investigations, corporate compliance matters, and internal investigations and audits. His multifaceted legal background allows him to offer comprehensive support to clients across various industries, effectively protecting their interests and rights.

Throughout his career, Lee has successfully litigated in both courtrooms and arbitration settings, displaying his prowess as a skilled advocate. He has also represented clients in cases before significant agencies, such as the New York State Department of Health (NYSDH), the New York City Commission on Human Rights (NYCCHR), and the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC).

As an adjunct professor of law at Brooklyn Law School, Lee teaches an advanced course focused on trial advocacy, evidence, and procedure. Lee also serves as a faculty advisor to the school's Moot Court Honor Society's Trial Advocacy Division, where he passionately coaches students and teams, guiding them to local, regional, and national championships.

Lee is a trusted advisor and ally to his clients, ensuring their success and compliance with the law. His dedication to the hospitality industry is evident in his client-focused approach, providing tailored solutions that meet the unique challenges faced by businesses in this sector.
